eco Service

External Data Protection Officer

For eco member companies based in Germany

Are ten or more of your staff regularly involved in the automated processing of personal data? Are you handling employee data in line with data protection requirements? How do you transfer data across borders? Are you aware of the EU General Data Protection Regulation?

eco offers you practical help for all data protection-related questions.

Most companies in the telecommunications and Internet industry in Germany are legally required to appoint a data protection officer. eco can provide one for member companies, on request, and in this way offers a professional service for telecommunications and Internet companies to face the challenges of data protection, to help you fulfill your legal obligations, to avoid fines, and to secure a competitive advantage in the market.

eco offers support in: Becoming compliant

- Acting as EU representative for international companies, where this is legally required
- Supporting incident response in the case of data breaches
- Acting as point of contact for data protection related enquiries
- Maintaining the Data Security Management System
- Providing remote training for your staff
- This service is exclusively for eco members, and individual services or an all-round data protection package can be booked at special member prices.

Staying compliant

- Guidance to establish existing level of data protection in the company, from the perspective of processes, technical structure and data security
- Risk assessment and prioritization of action to be taken
- Drafting of the legally required record of processing activities
- Establishing the Data Security Management System, including processes to ensure continued compliance

Data Protection

For eco member companies based outside of Germany

The eco Association offers support in compliance with European data protection law.

International companies have an uphill battle to ensure they are compliant with the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR). This law is not only relevant for European companies – it applies to any company that has customers within the EU, regardless of where you are based.

When it comes to data protection, you're not alone!

eco can provide the expert know-how that you need to ensure your processes are compliant and keep them that way, to train your staff, and to react effectively to security incidents.

eco can also act as the EU Representative for non-European companies that are required by law to appoint one.
